Thinking Out Loud

A good memory can serve the American people well in this time of war and in the peace to follow. Most men and women, who are 45 years of age can remember in rough outline the events which followed World War No. 1. They can remember Congress meeting to determine whether this country should participate in the League of Nations, and its corollary, an international tribunal. They can remember, a great many of them with shame, that under the leadership of Senators Borah, Johnson and Lodge, the senate rejected any active participation in these two organizations which President Wilson urged desperately as the only road to permanent peace.

Lodge and Borah have gone to their reward. Senator Johnson still holds his seat in the Senate. Sometimes we wonder what the trend of his thought is, now that he sees his country plunged into an even greater, more costly, and far more sanguinary struggle, than the war which America helped to win, and then deliberately destroyed all chance of permanent peace. Yes, we wonder what this aged man now thinks.

By and large memory among the majority of people, anywhere, is short. Not only that but, it would seem, that a few, a very few, have more than a rudimentary knowledge of history. Experience of course can make deeper marks on the human brain than history, because history must be gleaned mainly from books. Only those deeply cognizant of the lessons history offers can appraise the present moment as probably the most crucial in all the years of human life on earth.

More millions are engaged in this world struggle. The stakes are the same as in many another war, but science and communications have infinitely multiplied their value. It is a struggle to the death. How many have noted Russian and German despatches to the effect: "This detachment, regiment, or division, cut off and surrounded, is now being annihilated." A dispatch concerning a counter attack by 700 Japs in the Solomon Islands states that 670 were killed, two got away, and the rest, 28 were captured. No quarter, apparently is being given or asked. We have to turn back 2000 years in the annals of human kind to find anything approaching the brutal horror of this war. Perhaps, we do an injustice to the Roman legions in their bloody conquests to compare their exploits with those of the Japanese in China, or the Germans in Poland. At times the Romans did enslave populations, notably certain of the Greeks, and at times they exterminated the inhabitants of villages and cities as a dreadful lesson to the rest of the population. But history does not accuse them of such wholesale butcheries as those committed, for instance, by Hitler against

Army Rules Governing Liquor Sales Outlined

The rules and regulations governing the sale of liquor to men in uniform were outlined to Nevada County liquor men by Colonel Hanover, commander of the sub district of the western defense command, extending from Oroville to Mojave.

Hanover stated that army regulations must be observed and violators would be placed "out of bounds," meaning that such saloons could not be patronized by servicemen.

Military police are soon to be stationed in this county preparatory to the establishing of thousands of soldiers at Camp Beale.

In general, Hanover outlined the following points for dispensers:

1. No sales of spirit liquors except between 6 and 10 p. m.
2. No sales to men under the influence of liquor.
3. No sales of liquor of any kind to Indians and minors in the service.
4. No sales to servicemen on duty or in transportation vehicles.
5. No sales to citizens who will treat soldiers with spirits liquors after 10 p. m.

The fifth rule was admittedly a difficult one and one that requires tact to handle, but was highly important, Hanover explained.

Nevada County law officers assured Colonel Hanover that Nevada County would cooperate fully in its program. Service station men were cautioned to forbid servicemen from changinging into civilian clothing in the station rest rooms.

William Cassettari, city attorney of Grass Valley stated houses of prostitution would remain closed in the county and that slot machines and gambling would stop.

Carl J. Tobiassen and District Attorney Vernon Stoll were present at the meeting and pledged the cooperation of their offices to see that the orders of the Army were enforced.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brody have returned to Nevada City to reside. Mrs. Brody will be remembered as Mrs. Blanche Neaves who opened the Shamrocw Cafe here a number of years ago. The Brody home is near her daughter, Mrs. Carl Foote on Zion Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wood of Boulder Street have as a guest their daughter, Mrs. Frank Boggust and small daughter of San Bernardino.

LOCAL FIREMEN SUPPRESS GRASS BLAZE SUNDAY

The Nevada City fire trucks were called into action yesterday afternoon to assist in the control of a grass fire in the rear of the Prouse Drive In Market.

The state fire trucks were on duty on a fire elsewhere and the local fire department was called to fight the blaze. The fire started in the old Pianezzi orchard.

Last night the state fire trucks were called to the Lady Jane Manor on the Auburn Highway. A house near the manor burned after tennants, who just moved into the residence, started a fire in the stove. It seems while the house was vacant rats had established a nest in the chimney and when the fire was started the rats nest ignited and spread the flames to the house. The home was burned to the ground.

The state crews were also called to curb a fire which started along the highway below the old Dimmen's sawmill. The fire, believed to have been started by a cigarette thrown from an automobile, burned three or four acres of grass.

TRUCKEE MAN SUCCUMBS HERE

Jack Alexander Doyle, 70, resident of Truckee for the past 26 years, died yesterday at the Nevada County Hospital. Doyle was brought to the hospital from Truckee four days ago. He previously had been an inmate of the institution.

The body of Doyle is at the Holmes Funeral Home here, where final rites are pending. The deceased was a native of Stanton, Minn. He has a brother living in Canada.

SLICING THEIR WEDDING CAKE

V MAIL GIVEN PRIORITY OVER ALL CLASSES

The Post Office Department announced today that the V-Mail Service, inaugurated on June 15, 1942, is now past the experimental stage, with each week showing large increases in the number of letters mailed to American soldiers overseas.

The War Department has increased its facilities to handle promptly the volume expected in the future.

Facilities for photographing and reproducing V-Mail to and from the United States and the British Isles, Australia, India, Hawaii and other points are now in operation. A similar service is being planned for Iceland and other points where the volume may warrant.

Pointing out that V-Mail provides a safe means of communicaton with members of our Armed Forces, the Post Office Department gave assurance that the film (upon which the communications are reproduced) are given the most expeditious dispatch available. Because of the small space taken up by the rolls of film, they often can be carried on ferry planes or bombers.

Every pound of weight which can be saved on air transports overseas, said the department, means that an equivalent amount of weight can be allotted vital military material.

In recognition of this, and in an effort to insure delivery of mail to as many men as possible at overseas destinations when space is limited, the war and navy departments have directed that V-Mail be given priority in dispatch over all other classes—includng air mail—when transportation facilities under control of those departments are used.

V-Mail letter sheets have been distributed at all post offices; and have been provided all military and naval personnel at overseas points through army and navy post offices and military channels.

Private firms and individuals have also been permitted by the post office department to reproduce the letter sheets. The sheets also will be available soon to all stores selling stationery.

V-Mail service provides for the use by patrons of a special letter sheet form which is a combination letter and envelope of uniform size and design. The patron writes his message, completes the name and address of the adressee and the return card in the space provided, folds, seals, and mails the letter in the usual manner. Patrons are warned that only the inner or letter side of V-Mail letters ae photographed, and should be careful to show the complete address of the person to whom the message is sent in the panel provided therefor above the space for the message. It is preferable to print the address in large block letter. Enclosures must not be placed in the letters.

V-Mail letters are photographed on micro-film by automatic machines at the rate of 2,000 to 2,500 per hour and the film rolls contianing 1,500 letters each are transmitted to the destinations. Reproductions are then made by other automatic machines and delivered to the addressee in individual sealed window penalty envelopes.

When V-Mail letters are addressed to places where mirco-film equipment is not in operation, the letters are transmitted to destination in original form by the most expeditous means available. Even in these instances savings in weight and space are accomplished since there are approximately 97 V-Mail letters in a pound, whereas, ordinary letters average 40 per pound.

The war, navy and post office departments all cooperated in developing this service, largely with a view to decreasing the volume of mail to be carried overseas and providing an expeditious service.

The public is urged to use it at every opportunity.

Farmers To Meet Tuesday On Wheat Purchase

A meeting of all farmers in the county has been called for tomorrow night in the N. I. D. headquarters in Grass Valley, for the purpose of purcsahing more Government wheat. The last purchase was 320 tons at $31.14 per ton freight included. The Agricultural Adjustment Association is calling the meeting.

MINERS GAIN IN FIGHT FOR BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

A Grass Valley victory, plus Chico's loss to Oroville, placed the Miners within one game of a tie for first place in the Sacramento Valley League yesterday.

Four games remain to be played on the schedule and the Miners play three of them with Chico.

The Grass Valley victory yesterday was a 6 to 4 decision over Marysville. Turpin pitched his fourth victory in five starts for the Miners. Paul Bowa, Ned Fusaro and Dick Hoskins were the leading hitters for the Miners in yesterday's contest. The winning runs were scored in the seventh inning after the Giants had tied the score at 4 to 4.

The score:	R.	H.	E.
Grass Valley	6	10	2
Marysville	4	9	2

Batteries: Turpin and Stassi; Perry and Brock.

Caught in the Riffles

SORRY! The Nevada City Nugget and E. L. Holbrooke, local salvage dealer, regret that it was impossible Saturday, Junk Rally Day, to pick up all the junk which Nevada City residents generously gathered to contribute to the war effort.

However, Holbrooke promises that within a few days he will collect junk at the homes of every resident of the community who called in to report they had junk available.

Through the Nugget Holbrooke sponsored Junk Rally Day and the response was overwhelming. Dozens of residents called The Nugget to report they had gathered additional junk for the drive, boosting the total junk gathered here to beyond 60,000 pounds.

Holbrooke was to have gathered in the junk at the various homes Saturday but when the calls exceeded expectations he announced he would continue the collections today and tomorrow and even longer if necessary. Anyway, he promises no home where junk has been gathered shall be passed up.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anargus have closed the Sweet Shop here and after a vacation in Reno, Anargus will enter employment in some defense industry for the duration of the war.

The departure from Nevada City of the Anargus' will cause general regret. The couple had made many friends during the two years in business here at the location formerly occupied by the Foley candy store.

Anargus says the principal reason for the suspension of his business here is due to a shortage in skilled labor. During the summer high school girls had been employed but he said when school starts again it is probable he would have found it impossible to secure help in the operation of his business.

Anargus states the two years he has been in Nevada City have been among the most pleasurable in his life. He regained his health here. He hopes to return to start in business again after the war is over.

Anargus was active in the local chamber of commerce.

Miners are great for pranks. A Nevada Cityan pulled a good one Saturday night when he laced one of the men's boots to the skip chain. When it came time to get out of course the victim couldn't budge and Lava Cap Mines production held up while a fellow employee could untangle the laces and free the man skip to lower more men to work.

Stanley Foreman, 16, local youth injured in the tragic fire truck accident in Grass Valley, has recovered sufficiently to want to "go home." But he must remain in the hospital at least two more weeks. Billy Tobiassen, 16, also of this city, is showing additional improvement but he will probably be in the hospital for another month. Despite a serious injury to his left eye, Billy, unless further complications develop, will be able to see out of it.

Game Warden Earl Hiscox, a sergeant in the last war, will leave for San Francisco this week to be examined for army duty. Hiscox is volunttering his services. E. T. R. Powell has been accepted by he Marines and has been sworn in by that branch of the service.

Mrs. Allen Nye left Friday to join her husband in Winnemucca, Nevada where he has been stationed by his company.

POSTWAR MARKET

What will happen to business after the war? That question, naturally is being carefully pondered these days by business executives of all sorts—whether they be engaged in production, financing, merchandising, advertising, or any of the other many functions of modern industry.

At the outset of the war, the popular idea seemed to be that nothing but depression could follow the terrible dislocation of worldwide conflict.

Recently, however, an increasing number of realistic students of economic matters are coming to the view that a great new day of general and well distributed prosperity will dawn with the peace that follows this war.

One clear and concise analysis along this line was made recently by a high placed Westinghouse executive, Bonnell W. Clark, who put it like this:

The present concentration on armament production, and the restrction on consumer goods, together with the enormous increase in purchasing power, are creating a strong vacuum which can only be satisfied by post-war production, sale and distribution of needed consumer articles.

Payrolls will therefore be kept large and constant, and in turn they will be invested in goods. A new mass market is being formed, which can only be satisfied with mass production on a larger scale than before.

On obvious corollary is that manufacturers who now are doing only one job—producing the tools of war—and have only one customer—the government—must keep the lifeblood of business flowing through advertising.

They cannot afford to let the people forget or ignore the industrial and merchandising organizations which are in existence now, but which are temporarily being put on the shelf because of civilian curtailment in the war.

These are the organizations that can and must bridge the transition between wartime and peacetime economy, and if they should fail to do it, then the dark picture that many economists thought they saw at the outbreak of the war might yet become reality.

So advertising today is not so much a sales service, or a means of persuading the public to buy a product now, as it is a far-sighted and constructive means of maintaining this bridge from an artificial wartime prosperity to a genuine civilian prosperity in the period that follows.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder about Ham and Eggs—
I thought the thing was down and out,
But now it's cooking up again,
Of that there is no shade of doubt;
And as its leaders strive once more
To get the tax payers in a jam,
I ask in all sercerity,
Which is the Egg and which the Ham?

I wonder at the remarkable powers of recrudescence displayed by that political ignis fatuus, Ham and Eggs. Blown away by the strong winds of reason, it comes flitting back at stated intervals of time, to be loudly acclaimed by those who are seemingly seeking self aggrandizement at the expense of too too, credulous voters. To those voters one can only say,—"Beware!"

Certain proponents of the Ham and Eggs fantasy may succeed in getting their names upon the November ballot. If they do, it is to be hoped that they will be overwhelmingly defeated that California can thankfully say, "thank God, an' there's an' end o' that."

For one thing we may be grateful, that is I hope we may, the single tax will be a dead issue and no will be talking of, "unearned increment," for some time to come.

I wonder if there are any strict rules and regulations governing the rights and privileges of free speech. There should be, for many times free speech degenerates into free screech and becomes annoying.

Words are protent for good or ill—perhaps more so now than at any previous period of world history and loyal Americans, even those in high places, will place a guard upon their lips.

Idle words are better left unspoken. After all, England will deal with the Indian situation and military experts will determine the time and place for the opening of a second front. Of course, we have opinions and are at liberty to express them, but let us take care that our words are not following the pattern of German propaganda, that they do not offend the allies who are fighting with us and that they do not make sweet music in the ears of Adolph Schicklegruber.

I wonder if Hitler's boasted invincibility hasn't been pretty thoroughly debunked. Certainly, he is still "going strong," but no stupid person is invincible and Hitler is a man of collossal stupidities. From his first absurd assumptions of racial superiority—claims at which the most amateurish anthropologists laughed in derision, down to the present time he has been guilty of one folly after another.

Stupidly he commits, or causes to be committed unspeakable atrocities in the expectation of winning adherents to his new order, and now with equal stupidity he attacks Brazil. Surely Schicklegruber does not need another enemy, but he has made one and of course he will stupidly make others. Some day his temple of hatred will crash down upon him and history will brand him as the most foolish fool of this or any other age.

Uncle Silas says; "One good thing about these political campaigns, when they are over, we realize what a number of men of 'outstanding ability and integrity' we are blessed with."—A.Merriam Conner.

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him; and he shall direct thy paths.—Proverbs 3:5, 6.

While reason is puzzling about the mystery, faith is turning it into her daily bread and feeding on it thankfully in her heart of hearts.—Frederick D. Huntington.

SHOOTING THE WORKS

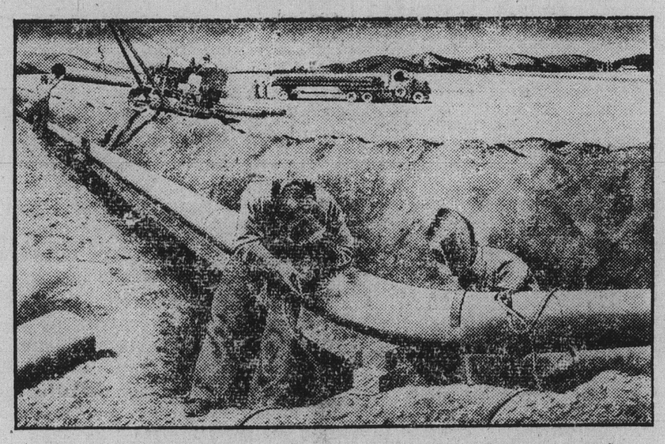

NEWS IN RHYME

Over KJBS Daily at 12:30 P. M.
By Harley M. Leete, Jr.

Here's an islander from far away,
Who arrived here just the other day
An unwilling stowaway—Tatoa,
Whose homeland is in sweet Samoa,
Was counting cargo, fell asleep,
And woke upon the briny deep.
He says in Pago Pago there,
The men are tsrong, the lasses fair.
The blackout can't shut off the moon,
That sparkles bright on sofe lagoon.
When he'll get home, he doesn't know,
But as soon as possible, ulans to go.
He wanted, once, to see the world—
The flags of many lands unfurled.
But this bright brown youth of eighteen years,
Doesn't care for strangers ways and fears,
As a matter of fact, this Samoan lad,
Has got homesickness—got it bad.
He's arranged to sail on an early ship,
And, as sailor, make that homeward trip.
He'll earn his way, though it be long,
And greet his family, well and strong.
He longs to feel the tropic sun,
And have his lonely visit done.
He longs to sit 'neath tropic palms,
Far away from talk of war and bombs.
Samoa, he says, isn't much aware—
Of the war—for things are peaceful there.
Though since December, white warriors have come,
And changed the island's feelings some.
The islanders love to bask and swim,
And the western spirit, quick and grim,
Makes little impression on native folk,
Though they hate and fear the Nipponese yoke.
But Tatoa is happy, now he has planned,
A quick return to a sunnier land.
We hope his ship meets no barrage,
To Tatoa of Samoa—a bon voyage!

Leaves For Canada—

Theodore Kohler, Jr., who Tuesday was elected as public administrator of Nevada County, left Saturday for a vacation trip through the Pacific Northwest and in Canada.

THEY FEED THE FURNACES of WAR

Natural Gas Workers Fight, too, for Victory

WHEN PEARL HARBOR plunged the United States into war, this utility company was prepared. No mobilization orders were necessary.

Our men, already working at full capacity, were ready. And among these non-military forces, trained by years of experience, one mighty important division is composed of the Gas Workers. They are men from many skilled crafts—engineers, chemists, gas technicians, compressor operators, pipe fitters and layers, trench machine drivers.

Their job is a big one. They must maintain a system of thousands of miles of transmission and distribution pipe lines, through which natural gas from the oil and gas fields of Central and Northern California is carried. They must deliver a constant flow of gas to the war plants in this extensive territory—to the steel furnaces, the shipyards, the cement plants, the shops and factories where production requires efficient heat.

Millions of cubic feet also must be supplied for the making of metallic magnesium. At the same time, the Gas Workers must maintain service to the cooking ranges and the heaters of 600,000 homes and supply the other fuel needs of some 3,000,000 people.

They are doing all this, laboring day and night, worthily carrying their share of the fight for Victory.

MILK RECESS TIME

This school and its pupils are co-operating enthusiastically with the efforts of the Agricultural Marketing Administration, U. S. Department of Agriculture, to increase the flow of milk from the farms to schools where children can get it for a penny a day.

During the coming school year "penny milk" will be available under local sponsorship for distribution to more than 200,000 school children living in rural and small urban areas thoughout the western states, according to announcement made today by K. C. May, area supervisor of the Agricultural Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture.

This is a part of a national school milk expansion program whereby children living in communities of 10,000 population, or less, may purchase a half pint of milk for a penny each school day.

It was pointed out that due to limitation of funds, the Agricultural Marketing Administration is mainly concerned with the expansion of the milk plan in rural areas where milk distribution is generally more difficult and financial assistance is not as readily available as in larger centers.

In explanation of the term "penny milk" Mr. May stated: "It simply means that children may buy milk at school at a cost not to exceed one penny per half pint. In this plan, the Agricurtural Marketing Administration agrees to pay to the program's sponsor an amount equal to the price paid by milk distributors to the dairy farmer or unprocessed milk. This amount varies but should average about 1 1-2 cents peh half pint. The sponsor pays the difference between this amount plus the penny received from the children and the distributors price for the milk delivered. Contributions from co-sponsoring community groups may help defray part of these expenses, especially when the sponsoring agency's funds are limited."

The primary sponsoring agencies of a "penny milk" program are public bodies such as county departments or school districts. If it is not possible for the Agricultural Marketing Administration to enter into a contract of agreement with a public body, a civic organization might, in some instances, be selected as a program sponsor.

In general, civic groups, such as the PTA, American Legion, Communitly Chest, Kiwanis and other service clubs and commnty organizations, act as co-sponsors o a school "penny milk" program. These groups may contribute supplementary funds to the program, thus assisting the sponsor in the operation of the program. The small amount of supplementary funds contributed by civic groups to the sponsoring agency would, in most instances, represent a smaller expenditure than they might ordinarily pay for th support of other school milk programs in which they would not reach nearly as many children.

All milk served under the program has to be at least equal to that approved for consumer use by local health authorities.

Surveys reveal that many children receive little, if any, milk in their daily diets at home. It has also been learned that prior to the inauguration of the "penny milk" program, many schools serving milk were unable to provide half pints of milk each day at a price the children could afford to pay.

In a recent program operated in Arizona, it was found that, prior to the adoption of the "penny milk" program, sales were about sixty half pints a day and the children had to pay 3 cents per half pint. Since then under the "penny milk" program, milk drinking has become such a health habit that the children and sponsors are buying more than 1,200 half pints a day in the same school.

This form of health protection, like the community school lunch program, is one phase of national defense activity to which all rural and small urban communities can contribute. It is an opportunity for the school districts and community organizations to go into partnership with Uncle Sam to bring penny milk to thousands of children this coming school year.

SLICKER OF FILM FAME IS STAR OF CIRCUS SEA LION TROUPE

Performing on the back of cantering ponies what ordinary trained seals are content to achieve on solid ground, Winston's Equestrian Sea Lions lay undisputed claim to that frequently over-worked term, the "world's only."

This unique trained animal exhibition holds center ring billing with Russell Bros.' Great 3-Ring Circus which is to appear at Cashin Field, Nevada City today, August 31.

Slicker, the ringmaster of the troupe, is termed by his trainer, H. W. Winston, as the smartest seal ever to gulp a fish. In fact, he's so smart Winston cannot understand how he ever got tangled upin a fish net off the coast of Monterey a little more than four years ago. Winston bought him from the fisherman who hauled him out of the ocaan with a catch of halibut. And it wasn't long before he stood out in the Wnston herd like a wart in a debutante's nose.

Slicker is rated as a topflight actor by Henry Hathaway, the film director. Slicker has played in a number of pictures, "Spawn of the North," and "Fisherman's Wharf" among them. Hathaway calls him "One Shot" Slicker because he never muffs a part and the camera only has to roll once for a perfect performance.

Winston has toured the world with his sea lions. This season he is making his first tour with an American circus because war conditions cancelled his bookings abroad.

This act is considered "tops" by discriminating circus goers, and so are many of the other 1942 features of the Russell Circus — Jorgen M. Christiansen, with his Argentine Crillo horses; the Seven Skyrocketing Escalannes in breath taking exploits on the flying trapeze; and the Sensational DeWaynes in whirlwind acrobatics, to mention only a few.

Performances are given twice daily at 2 and 8 p. m. Doors to the menagerie and big top open on hour earlier.

THINKING OUT LOUD

the Jews. Individual cruelties, yes, but not such massed cruelties.

We seldom hear nowadays the voice of Senator Johnson of California raised in the United States Senate. The old isolationist is strangely, should we say, becomingly, quiet. Thousands of people, in the universities, learned men, historians, scientists, who have lived and will live through the two greatest war catastrophies ever visited upon this world, have come to the conclusion that the only way peace can be maintained after this war is won by the democracies, is by a police force of navies, armies and airsquadrons adequate to compel peace, force obedience to international law, and force the adjudication of national complaints before an international tribunal, much on the pattern envisioned by President Woodrow Wilson, twenty odd years ago.

Will we get that kind of congress, say, two years from now? Or will there be enough senators of the Wheeler stripe to again force this country into an isolationist role in world affairs. Will there be enough small bore politicians, Republican or Democratic, intent on destroying President Roosevelt politically, to also destroy, what may be, the last chance offered the United States to help establish world peace, and guarantee, for "a thousand years" our freedom, our rights, our way of life? No one can tell, of course, what the answer will be. Democratic problems, when the war ends, may overshadow the world problem. That, we must guard against. We can only hope that two years fro mnow, patriotic men, intelligent and forceful, will sacrifice their careers in the professions or in business, if need be, to run for office in congress. So that for once the American people may elect leaders, and not mediocrities, crooners (Pass the Biscuits Papp) or cranks to congress.

RESERVOIR OF 1A'S EXHAUSTED

Selective Service Director Hershey sad draft boards will begin calling men with dependents before Christmas. He said single men with "secondary" dependents, such as aged or crippled relatives, will be called first; married men whose wives work, next! then men with dependent wives; and finally men who have wives and children. He said the reservoir of 1-A men throughout the country is "practically exhausted." Selective Service headquarters said

Richard Merrill and Quincy Crain, Lava Cap Mines employees, are recovering satisfactorily from injuries suffered while at work last week.

Merrill was injured at the Banner Mine when a rock fell upon him.

Crain was hurt at the Central Mine when he fell from a staging on the 80 stope of the 12th level.

Both men were taken to the Jones Memorial Hospital in Grass Valley.

TIRE QUOTAS

Tire quotas will have to follow a downward trend the rest of this year to keep within the amount of rubber earmarked by the WPB for the purpose, the Office of Price Administration said. The office asked local rationing boards for the "strictest possible interpretation" of an amendment to tire rationing regulations restricting truck eligibility to vehicles essential to the war effort or public health and safety.

War Board Urges Farmers To Dry Fruit

BERKELEY, Aug. 26.—California orchardists and fresh fruit packers were called upon today by the state War Board of the United States Department of Agriculture to conserve every possible pound of fruit by drying, even though the extra work may return little or no profit.

Citing the recent order of the WPB requiring that the entire 1942 pack or dried fruits be reserved to fill military and lend-lease needs before any shall be available for civilian consumption, Dave Davidson, USDA War Board chairman, emphasized the possibility that critical shortages will result if any substantial amount of fruit is permitted to go to waste.

"In this war, every potential ounce of essential food is important, and there can be no thought of placing the profit motive ahead of the nation's war needs," said Davidson. "Despite the labor shortage, despite the many other problems confronting farmers and processors, an effort must be made to conserve all edible fruit. If it can't be canned, if it can't be sold on the fresh market, then it should be dried even though the monetary return does not compensate for the extra work.

"One important factor is the heretofore accepted practice of culling out and 'dumping' substantially wholesome fruit because of blemishes or minor insect damage. Most of this fruit could be salvaged by drying and should be salvaged. It's not a matter of dollars and cents, but one of simple patriotism."

Adults residing in the area served by Placer Junior College may obtain training in defense work at night classes to be sponsored by Placer Junior College.

Superintendent Harold E. Chastain this week announced classes in machine shop practice, are welding, oxy acetylene welding, acetylene welding and burning are under consideration.

Residents of the region interested in such courses are requested to telephone Mr. Chastain at the administrative offices.

In a preliminary report to Superintendent Chastain, M. H. Ellstad, machine shop instructor said:

"Our machine shop is especially well equipped for teaching the fundamentals in machine shop practice. A class can be given in this type of work two nights a week.

A class in arc welding and oxy acetylene welding can be held twice a week. Instruction can be given in the use of direct and alternating welding.

Former Stevedores Trained For Port Battalions

The War Department said it will inaugurate this fall a voluntary pre-induction training program utilizing existing facilities of schools and colleges, to meet present and future needs for properly trained personnel in the armed forces. Out of every 100 men inducted into the army, about 63 are assigned to duties requiring specialized training, the department said. The army said it is organizing and training port battalions composed mostly of former stevedores for duty overseas to insure prompt handling of U. S. military equipment for forces stationed throughout the world. The department said checks in payment of allowances to dependents of enlisted men of the army covering the first applications to be approved, will go out shortly after September 1.
